Our trainers burned their midnight oil for public awareness about the introduction, infection, and control of Coronavirus. Our primary focus was to ensure the understanding of the attendees about the nature and devastating performance of pandemic. We kept our mode of communication as simple as possible. This approach helped our trainers to probe into the minds of the people, the safety measures they could adopt to avoid and prevent this invisible enemy to enter their lives. Each training session was backed by great applause from the public. Many of them asked for more.

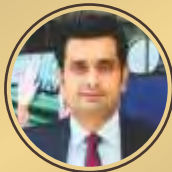

We conducted over 300 plus free training sessions for social and behavioristic resilience of the public at more than a hundred organizations and awarded training certificates to the attendants.

Feedback from the participants glitters in trainers' smiles.
